OUR CALENDAR OF LIFE

(E. E. Leonard)

This is Sunday and the Sabbath,
Folks must rest from weary toil,
Go to Church to kneel and worship,
Blessing God for Nature's soil;
Thanking Him for all His kindness
Tho' the dark clouds sometimes fret,
And we grumble at our blindness
While our eyes with tears are wet.

Then the infant dawn of Monday,
Tells us of a day new born,
And the sun in all its glory
Fills the skies so rent and torn;
Thro' the worries of all to-morrows
There will beam this ray of hope,
And they'll vanish away like bubbles
If we smile and cease to mope.

In the Tuesday of our life time,
Childhood joys will reign supreme,
While we drink the sweetest nectar
Of the rosy childhood dreams;
As we say our prayers at night-fall
In a hushing childish way,
We're preparing for the morrow
Should the clouds be dark and gray.

Wednesday finds us on the threshold
Of adventures found in youth,
And we struggle with experience,
Some are fondled, some abused;
Thus we enter life's great college,
Each must answer to the call,
Some reap sweet and helpful knowledge,
While some poor hearts are filled with gall.

Thursday finds us on the summit,
And we start our journey down,
Stumbling through the thickened woodland,
Searching for the prairie ground;
Many times we pause to ponder,
Wishing for the days of old,
For we love the days back yonder
As a miser loves his gold.

Friday we are fast descending
Into the valley of peacefulness,
Where the drowsy waters wending
Speak of toilsome days and rest;
Slowly now the sun is sinking,
And its brilliant noonday rays
Have ceased to guide our weary footsteps,
Through the paths of yesterdays.

Saturday we reach the valley,
Where the cool green grasses wave,
And we lay us down to slumber
On a clay couch called the grave;
Resting on Old Nature's bosom,
Like a weary child forlorn,
Sleeping the sleep of sweet contentment,
Waiting for the judgment morn.

MISSOURI REPUDIATES IT

The Outrageous Fordney-McCumber Profiteer Tariff Act Will Be Trampled Upon.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 21.—The outstanding situation in this campaign is the record of the Republican administration during the last two years, according to former United States Senator Xenophon P. Willey of St. Louis. In striking addresses before a large audience at Joplin last night, Senator Willey and former Governor Frederick D. Gardner, formally opened the Democratic campaign in South-west Missouri. The speakers were accorded a hearty reception and reference to Senator Reed and Woodrow Wilson were greeted by vigorous applause.

"I had the honor to represent the people of this state and the United States as a colleague of Senator James A. Reed during the world war," said Willey. "Senator Reed and I differed on some of the questions arising out of the war but on the great fundamental principles of our war program, we stood together and supported that great world leader, Woodrow Wilson."

"The Republican candidate for United States senator from Missouri has boasted of the cruel and brutal things he has said about Woodrow Wilson. He stands four-square for the policies of the present Republican administration. His election would mean that Missouri is committed to those policies and the inevitable results which the people of the state will suffer by reason thereof."

"The election of Senator Reed means that Missouri repudiates the Fordney-McCumber bill and all the harmful things that brought it about and the harmful results that must come to our people from its operation. Senator Reed fought this bill on the floor of the senate. He has always fought such measures as this. He has always stood for the great agricultural interests of his state and that means every interest in Missouri because we are primarily an agricultural state. You always know where Senator Reed stands. He doesn't put you off by saying he wants to hear from his opponent before he expresses himself. He is not a truckler nor a trimmer. He is a fearless fighter of great power and strikes terror to his opponents wherever and whenever he arises to attack them. He is the leader of the Democratic forces in the senate in debate. He is an independent thinker and a bold champion of what he believes to be right. I have differed with him and I have opposed him and yet have always respected his courage and ability."

"In this great contest now before the people of this nation, I cannot allow the differences that arose between Senator Reed and myself on some of the questions arising out of the war to keep me from supporting him in this race. His great ability as a debater, his fearless courage as an advocate, his profound convictions on the fundamental principles of the Democratic party and his qualifications as a leader impel me to reconcile the differences that I have had with him and to give him my support in this campaign and urge the people of Missouri to vote for him at the coming election.

COMPLAINS OF SERVICE

Judge Henry Dillingham Wants Better Accommodations for His Community.

Much favorable comment has come from an article by Henry L. Dillingham in last week's paper regarding the service given by the Rock Island. Mr. Dillingham's complaint was well taken and conditions are fully as bad, if not worse, than he shows them. As to the mail question, this paper is also a victim of the Rock Island service. According to the poor routing laid down by the postal authorities, papers only leave the Platte City office over the Rock Island, either west in the morning or east in the evening. We have one other outgoing mail, but it is only for first class mail. With the Rock Island late from one to fifteen hours, our papers fail to catch the rural deliveries in nearby towns Saturday morning and with no delivery on Sunday, are laid over until Monday. Printed Thursday evening, The Landmark seldom reaches subscribers in Smithville, 12 miles away; East Leavenworth, nine miles away; Parkville, 18 miles away, until Monday, and often not until Tuesday. Of course the news is stale and in many instances the value of advertisements has been decreased to such an extent that we are ashamed to ask pay for them. If the Rock Island would give the service this territory is entitled to, it would not only relieve the miserable shipping and mail condition, but would doubtless in time mean increased business for the road and more money for its management—Platte County Landmark.

MEET AT KANSAS CITY

Postal Workers to Meet With the Postmaster General and First Assistant.

Postal workers of the state of Missouri will gather at Kansas City on November 11th for a conference-convention arranged by the Post Office Department. Postmaster General Work will attend. He will be welcomed according to the program, by Governor Hyde of Missouri and Senators Spencer and Reed. The mayor of Kansas City will also extend greetings to the head of the Post Office Department and the thousands of postal workers coming from every branch of the postal service in the state.

First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett is scheduled to speak on "Shop Talk in Live Postal Issues," after which there will be an "Open Forum" discussion participated in by the postal workers present. The final address will be made by the postmaster general, who will then hold an informal reception.

Postmaster Raylin Steele of Kansas City will preside, the plans calling for an afternoon session. A dinner will be given to the postmaster general at night by the business men of Kansas City.

A part of the program is also allotted to a conference between the postmaster general and the big users of mail in the state of Missouri for the purpose of discussing their postal problems.
